Two hundred jobs promised to London are still coming, even as the province scales back its agreement with a Korean consortium that includes Samsung.

In fact, the plant is scheduled to open by year's end, manufacturing solar panels and inverters. It will also have a research-and-development component.

As of last Friday, Premier Kathleen Wynne was unable to pinpoint when the plant would be built. The amended Green Energy Investment Agreement between Ontario and Samsung seems finally to have answered that question.

That's good news, despite Samsung having lowered its investment in Ontario to $5 billion from $7 billion. The province will buy 1,369 megawatts of renewable energy over three phases by 2016, down from 2,500 megawatts. The updated agreement commits the Korean consortium to maintain

"We've been working with Samsung since they first announced it," Mayor Joe Fontana said, referring to an election promise made by the Ontario Liberals. "It's going to make us a leader in the province in terms of renewable energy, solar research and other advantages they will bring to the table."

The plant is another in a series of steps in the right direction, one expert said.

"I think this is good news, and if true, it's quicker than I was expecting," said Mike Mofatt, assistant professor and economist at Western's Richard Ivey School of Business. "Clearly, this isn't going to solve all of London's problems, but with an unemployment rate of near 10 per cent we need all the good news we can get, and this is fantastic news for the city."

Seeing Is Believing

Royal team pays city a visit

Some Forest City non-profits got a bit of the royal treatment on Thursday.

Prince's Charities, an organization founded by the Prince of Wales, is partnering with Goodwill Industries and other community groups to launch the Seeing Is Believing program in London.

The program aims to get corporate leaders engaged with social issues and challenges them to take action — urging them to take the problem-solving skills they use in their businesses and put them to work on issues such as unemployment.

The Prince's Charities started working in Canada two years ago. London is the first Ontario city outside Toronto that's been tapped to get involved.

While Prince Charles himself didn't make the rounds on Thursday, several representatives of the charity were here to speak on his behalf.

The visit had a very specific focus, said Matthew Rowe, an operations manager for the Prince's Charities.

"The whole issue for today is mental health as a barrier to employment," Rowe said.

To give corporate partners a better understanding of who they will be helping, they met Thursday with people served by a handful of agencies and heard their stories.

New job. Man at helm of London's economic-development activity says he couldn't pass up 'spectacular opportunity'

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

High unemployment is the boondoggle London hasn't been able to fix. But the outgoing London Economic Development Corp. CEO believes there are plenty of other signs the city is heading in the right direction.

White will be leaving the post he's held since 2007 to become the executive director of government relationships and strategic partnerships at Western University.

His first day on the job will be Aug. 19. Kapil Lakhota, now in charge of investment attraction at the LEDC, will become interim general manager.

"There's never a good time to make this transition," he said Thursday, "but this was a spectacular opportunity for me to continue to work with the city and to work on both government relations and strategic partnerships ... that will help support the city."

Looking back on his six-year tenure at the LEDC, White said the good outweighs the bad. Still, he acknowledged, some issues just couldn't be fixed.

"I think we're still going through the same challenges that have been here since I arrived," he said. "In the fall of 2007, we were just starting the economic crisis and, unfortunately, London is still working through some of those challenges."

The revival of manufacturing in the region has had a positive impact, as has the strengthening automotive market. The city is also branching out into other sectors, such as Internet technology and financial services, that could breed long-term benefits for employment.

"There are a lot of good news stories there, but it's the negative news that continues to overpower a lot of the advantages," he said.

Most of that negative news stems from the high unemployment rate that's been hovering at close to 10 per cent for

Success

"I think everybody is frustrated with the unemployment rate," White said. "It's tough when we continue to have an unemployment rate at the level it is."

Police to charge more for services

Prepare to dig deep for police services in the future as the force tries to recoup $867,000 in fees.

Chief Brad Duncan said the force has been undercharging for services such as collision reports, background checks, photography and fingerprinting for years. With a reduced budget for 2014, that has to change, Duncan said.

The police budget will be slashed by more than $600,000 next year. That money crunch means so-called non-core initiatives — the likes of which include the downtown foot patrol and school activities — could be reduced or eliminated.

Police are looking to cut back on non-core services. METRO FILE

Two motions were passed Thursday at the police services board meeting to look at structured-fee services and to find ways to recover administration time for the work that goes into them.

"When we compared ourselves with other (police) services, clearly we were not charging at the same rate," Duncan said. "There's a myriad of fees that we have to look at, so over the next couple of months we'll roll that out with public information going out so that they're aware of it."

Police brass will also examine the types of programs they deliver. Duncan said he's in favour of every one of them and believes there's a need to keep them in place.

"We're in schools, we're in crime prevention, obviously the (community-oriented response) unit downtown foot patrol," the chief said. "Some individuals would consider those not to be core services, I consider them to be core services."

People who want to share their thoughts about increased user fees and which programs are necessary, along with which ones aren't, will have their opportunity to be heard this fall.

"During September, October and November, we'll invite those individuals to come in and give us a sense of whether those program deliverables are still what the community wants," Duncan said.

A list of the services under examination will be released in the next six to eight weeks. The fee hikes will directly affect citizens, insurance companies and lawyers.

Michael Deeb, chair of the police services board, said the moves reflect the times.

"Certainly, times are tough, and the budgetary constraints are there and we've got to navigate our way around it," he said. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

Best laid plans. Potential treatment for Alzheimer's spawns marathon mice

Researchers at Western University have accidentally created a batch of super-athletic mice.

Genetically altered, these mice were boosted with acetylcholine — a key neurotransmitter partly responsible for cognitive function. Western's scientists hope to use it to treat Alzheimer's disease.

The only thing the extra acetylcholine helped the mice with, however, was endurance.

Dubbed the "Forrest Gump mice," the little rodents could run twice as far as normal mice before tiring — but registered big fails when it came to problem solving.

Researchers concluded that too much acetylcholine made the mice hyper aware of what was happening and left them unable focus on what was relevant. KEVIN HURREN/FOR METRO

Floods ravage southern Alberta

Mass exodus. Tens of thousands could be evacuated as rescue teams search for stranded victims

Torrential rains and widespread flooding throughout southern Alberta on Thursday washed out roads and bridges, sent residents scurrying for safety, and delivered up surreal scenes of cars, couches and refrigerators just floating away.

Officials with the City of Calgary said as many as 100,000 people could be forced from their homes due to heavy flooding, an evacuation that would take place in stages over the next few days.

"I woke up at about three o'clock in morning to the sound of this kind of rumbling and it was the creek," said Wade Graham, a resident of the mountain town of Canmore, west of Calgary.

The Bow River Basin was battered late Wednesday and into Thursday with up to 100 mm of rain, bringing river levels to the breaking point. Parts of Calgary along the Bow and Elbow rivers remained in the crosshairs with residents in six low-lying areas out of their homes.

There were flashpoints of chaos from Banff and Canmore and Crowsnest Pass in the Rockies, to Calgary and beyond in the north and south to Lethbridge. The flooding was particularly destructive in communities just south of Calgary, such as High River, Turner Valley and Black Diamond.

RCMP probe Sen. Harb in widening scandal

Sen. Mike Duffy makes his way to the Senate on Parliament Hill, Tuesday. RCMP are combing through campaign returns of 11 Tory candidates for whom Duffy campaigned during the last federal election. FRED CHARTRAND/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The police investigation into the Senate expenses scandal grew wider Thursday with the release of court documents that indicate the Mounties are now looking into a second senator.

Documents released from the Ottawa courthouse show the RCMP's Sensitive and International Investigations unit has obtained property records for a house in Cobden, Ont., once owned by Sen. Mac Harb.

Property records show Harb sold the house at 62 Durack Line Rd. in Cobden, about 120 kilometres west of Ottawa, two years ago.

The court documents mark the first acknowledgment that the RCMP is investigating Harb. Cpl. Lucy Shorey, a spokeswoman for the RCMP, declined further comment.

"We are not in a position to comment any further at this time," Shorey wrote in an email.

The name "Project Amble" is written under the heading "Nature of Event" on the exhibit report. It's unclear if the name refers only to the Harb investigation or to the Senate probe more broadly.

Harb, a Liberal who now sits as an independent, is among the senators in trouble for improperly claimed living expenses.

Following an external audit, Harb was ordered to repay $51,500 in housing and living expenses claimed over the two-year period of the audit. But the Senate has since demanded that he repay $231,649, covering eight years.

Harb filed a court application Monday to have the Senate's repayment order quashed. THE CANADIAN PRESS

One-third of women worldwide suffer domestic violence: WHO

Report. Assault by an intimate partner found to be the most common kind of violence experienced by women

About a third of women worldwide have been physically or sexually assaulted by a former or current partner, according to the first major review of violence against women.

In a series of papers released Thursday by the World Health Organization and others, experts estimated nearly 40 per cent of women killed worldwide were slain by an intimate partner. Being assaulted by a partner was the most common kind of violence experienced by women.

WHO defined physical violence as being slapped, pushed, punched, choked or attacked with a weapon. Sexual violence was defined as being physically forced to have sex, having sex because you were afraid of what your partner might do and being compelled to do something

Bleak outlook. Canadian youth face chronic unemployment

A new report says Canadian youth face the risk of chronic unemployment despite being more educated than ever.

The report by CIBC says a lack of summer jobs and part-time work makes it difficult for youth to gain the experience necessary for permanent positions.

About 420,000 youth aged 15 to 24, or nearly one in 10 young Canadians, are nei-

The report suggests combining education and work-related training to help youth find jobs while in school.

HIGH FIVES FOR HAND WASHERS

Welcome to The Metro List, the nation's foremost source for the week's best stories. Not the top ones — the best ones. Trust me.

1 Tony Soprano fades to black. The great James Gandolfini, who revolutionized television as Tony Soprano, everybody's favourite Mafioso, dies Wednesday of a massive heart attack at 51. Now we'll never know what happened after the infamous last episode, as a sequel without the greatest character since King Lear is unthinkable.

2 Bob Rae fades to grey. The man who never quite succeeds, whether he's the premier of Ontario or the interim leader of the federal Liberals, decides to call it a day and retires from Parliament to not quite succeed ... at something else.

3 Now you tell us. The head of Exodus International, an "ex-gay ministry" charged with the holy mission of curing homosexuals, abruptly shuts down his 200 ministries with an apology to gays: "You have never been my enemy," says president Alan Chambers. "I am very sorry that I have been yours." Oh, and those "on-going same-sex attractions"? He now accepts them as part of his life "that will likely always be there."

4 Just when we lose one disease, another one pops up. The American Medical Association declares obesity a disease. It's obviously contagious: more than one-third of Americans are now obese. Here's the good news. There's a sure-fire cure, but it doesn't come with fries.

5 Another disease? This one is called "poverty." According to one study, 50 per cent of Aboriginal children live below the poverty line. According to another study, there are 30,000 people across Canada who will spend the night homeless or in a homeless shelter. According to the first study it will cost $7.5 billion a year to bring all children up to the poverty line. According to the second, homelessness has a $7-billion-a-year price tag. Are you thinking what I'm thinking?

Eliminate homelessness and child poverty disappears.

6 A different kind of poverty. The Donald turns up in Vancouver and announces the development of the Trump Vancouver, a $500-million, 63-storey luxury hotel, condo development and spa, the second Trump spire in Canada, just a polite smidge shorter than the one in Toronto. Champagne was served.

7 We knew it. Another day, another study. Turns out 15 per cent of men don't wash their hands after going to the bathroom. Of those who do, only half use soap. That means your chances of shaking hands with some guy who didn't wash after relieving himself are perilously high. Of course, women are infinitely more civilized: only five per cent don't wash up and of those who do, 78 per cent use soap. Men are pissing soil. Men are plaque.

The grass is always greener ...

NASA/NOAA

NASA shows how lush our Earth is

Scientists have collected a year's worth of satellite observations to create a series of images showing the entire world's vegetation.

NASA spent 12 months gathering data from its Suomi National Polar-orbiting Partnership satellite to reveal the stark contrasts between lush, green and dry, arid regions of Earth.

NASA's Suomi NPP measures plant growth, vegetation cover and biomass production from satellite information. It is calculated from the visible and near-infrared light reflected by vegetation. The data is also used to measure cloud and aerosol properties, ocean colour, sea and land surface temperature, ice motion, fires, and the planet's albedo (reflected sunlight). METRO

"Although 75 per cent of the planet is a relatively unchanging ocean of blue, the remaining 25 per cent of Earth's surface is a dynamic green," says NASA. The space agency's data can also be for environmental monitoring, weather prediction models and drought forecasts. NASA/NOAA

Synopsis

After making a pancake breakfast for his wife (The Killing's Mireille Enos) and two kids (Sterling Jerins and Abigail Hargrove), ex United Nations investigator Gerry Lane (Pitt) drives his family to school and right into the middle of the zombie apocalypse. Drawing on his years of experience in war zones he navigates them to safety before he embarks on a mission to find patient-zombie zero and a cure for the virus that has turned most of the world's population into "Zekes."

Zombie film needs life

World War Z.

Brad-Pitt-helmed apocalyptic thriller a victim of dim lighting and lacklustre action

Richard: Mark, I like zombie movies. I also like Brad Pitt, so I'm disappointed that World War Z feels a bit dead on its feet. It has several thrilling scenes — the zombie hordes crawling over one another to scale a giant wall is really cool — but it doesn't even have the oomph of an episode of The Walking Dead. I know zombie apocalypses happen in dimly lit places, but the low light in the first hour of the movie makes it almost impossible to see Brad laying a whooping on the undead, which is the whole reason you buy a ticket to a movie like this.

Mark: Richard, low light means less makeup for the aging Mr. Pitt. But I liked this movie, and I'm not a fan of zombie flicks. The movie reminded me of Contagion but with corporeal viruses that you could actually see. The gore is tasteful, which not everybody will like, but it meant I could concentrate on the story and Pitt's haircut. But you're right about the low light. At times I thought I was watching a grad thesis from the Canadian Film Centre.

RC: The "aging" Mr. Pitt still looks better than I do on my best day, low light or not. My problem with it had more to do with not being able to see what was going on. This is a 3D action movie that actively tries to not show you all three dimensions of a good chunk of the action. It builds some atmosphere, but anyone with any braaaaains would have turned up the lights. On the other hand an exciting scene on an airplane really shows what a horror it is to fly in economy class.

MB: Ha! That was one of the good scenes, as was the entire Israel sequence, which I think was making a sly point about the limitations of a fortress-state. The long scene in the research facility felt like an exercise in taut, old-fashioned moviemaking, and the opening chase on the highway was harrowing and involving. But let's talk about the real stars of the picture: the zombies. They moved fast, which I liked, and often as a mass, frighteningly, by the thousands, creating an indelible image of a foe that may not just be zombies, but communists.

RC: It's just that the movie doesn't offer up any really great zombie one-on-one head splitting action à la The Walking Dead or great characters. One or the other would have breathed some life into this movie.

MB: Outside of Pitt, none of the characters really stick out, with one exception: David Morse's cameo as a turncoat CIA agent. Scarier than the zombies.

Drama

The Iceman

Director. Ariel Vroman

Stars. Michael Shannon,
Winona Ryder

Richard Kuklinski was a particularly puzzling personality, so it must have been tricky for director Ariel Vroman to craft much more than a fascinating surface-level biopic on The Iceman. The true tale of a 1960's family man-turned-cold-killing hitman for the mob, this drama may not uncover many psychological answers to Kuklinski's actions, but with mesmerizing performances led by Michael Shannon (Boardwalk Empire), The Iceman will still leave most audiences frozen in their seats. STEVE GOW

Before Midnight

Director. Richard Linklater

Stars. Ethan Hawke,
Julie Delpy

If you're a fan of the "Before" movies, watching Before Midnight will be like reconnecting with old friends. In the almost 20 years since we first met Jesse and Celine (Ethan Hawke and Julie Delpy) they have flirted and talked through the vagaries of life in two films, Before Sunset and Before Sunrise. Now they are a committed couple with twin daughters, but their introspection continues courtesy of beautifully written and performed conversations that explore how fissures can develop no matter how deep a couple's connection. RICHARD CROUSE

Animated

Monsters University

Director. Dan Scanlon

Stars. Billy Crystal,
John Goodman

With films like Wall-E and Ratatouille, Pixar became as known for developing thoughtful, streamlined family fare as it did for animation advancements, but Monsters University shows these pioneers could be losing their sharpness. A prequel to 2001's Monsters, Inc., the standard storyline follows unassuming eyeball Mike Wazowski as he struggles to succeed in the schooling of scaring kiddies. Sure, it's fun and froth for the preteen set but the film's simplified formula simply falls flat against Pixar's best work. STEVE GOW

Comedy/Drama

Old Stock

Director. James Genn

Stars. Noah Reid, Melanie
Leishman

Pulling from a variety of quirky indie dramadies, Old Stock centres on Stock Burton, a Max Fischer-esque teen living in a retirement home, hiding from a tragedy that's made him a social pariah. Stock's world is shaken after he's evicted, but not before he attracts the eye of Patti, the home's dance instructor. Their burgeoning relationship forces Stock to face his past. As likeable as the characters are, Old Stock's plot has more than a passing resemblance to the superior Silver Linings Playbook. IAN GORMELY

Pitt gets political

"I was interested in a political film using zombies as an excuse. I used them like the Trojan horse to ask questions like: What would happen with social or political aspects, if the world suffered a pandemic illness? Who would be the powerful countries and who would be the most vulnerable?"

How much dumber can this guy get?

Dumb and Dumber To. Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels are set to reprise their roles as the inept Lloyd Christmas and Harry Dunne

Nearly 20 years after Dumb and Dumber was released, Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels are reuniting for Dumb and Dumber To.

Daniels said Carrey approached directors Peter and Bobby Farrelly two years ago about doing a sequel.

"Jim has been against all sequels, and you know, understandably so. ... But he turned 50 and that will mellow you out, and suddenly he's going, 'Let's have some fun. ... Come on,' and we're going, 'Great,' and so the Farrells said, 'This isn't a money grab. Let's really write a great second movie that takes the original and then blows it up even further, and so I think they did that,' Daniels said in an interview Wednesday.

Jeff Daniels says Harry Dunne hasn't gained one IQ point in 20 years.
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Universal Pictures, which acquired the domestic distribution rights after Warner Bros. dropped out, confirmed the sequel.

"It's taken two years to get the studios and all that stuff worked out," Daniels said. "The easiest thing to say in Hollywood is 'no.' You keep your job if you say 'no.' If you say 'yes' and you're not right, you lose your job. There's a lot of 'no.' And we had a lot of 'no' for two years and finally 'yes,' it's comin' around, and I think it's got a chance to be I hope better than the first one."

Daniels said he's read the script and calls it "painfully funny."

The original premise wasn't that deep. It followed two well-meaning but moronic friends, Lloyd Christmas (Carrey) and Harry Dunne (Daniels), as they travelled cross-country to find the owner of a briefcase filled with money.

"We're middle-aged and still that stupid. Our IQ has not gone up one point combined," he said.

Two White House flicks, one summer

White House Down.

Independence Day director didn't get a chance to decimate America's house of power this time

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Maybe it's because he's best known for blowing up the White House in Independence Day, but when director Roland Emmerich turned to the West Wing for help in making White House Down — his new film about the White House overrun by terrorists — he got the cold shoulder.

"We applied for shooting permits and were denied," Emmerich says with a laugh. "I don't know why, it's strange."

If the plot sounds familiar,

No superheroes for Emmerich

A quick glance at Roland Emmerich's filmography turns up an interesting fact: Just about everything he's done has been an original film — not based on other source material or an existing franchise. It makes him something of an anomaly, of which he's well aware. "It's very hard to get original movies done these days," he says. "People tend to just like franchises. I don't know what it is — and all over the world. It's not just in America." But don't expect him to change his ways anytime soon: "I have, for example, a hard time making a movie about a comic book hero because I didn't grow up with comics. For me they kind of inevitably feel silly," he says.

it may be because there has already been one movie about terrorists taking over the White House this year. Given the success Olympus Has Fallen has already enjoyed, is Emmerich worried about comparisons?

"No, not really worried. I mean, maybe a little bit because naturally I would've been much happier being the first out, but also I didn't want them to rush it," he says. "I'm not terribly concerned. Hopefully it will work. We'll see June 28 if this will go over nicely."

The fact that there are two White House takeover movies so close to each other is a total coincidence, Emmerich insists. "I had a White House project with Sony for 10, 15 years, and it never came together for several reasons. And so when they bought this spec script by Jamie Vanderbilt, they immediately thought of me and sent it to me the same day they bought it,"

Roland Emmerich, director of White House Down and Independence Day, says the West Wing gave him the cold shoulder this time around. HANDOUT he says, explaining that work started very quickly on his new project. "And then all of a sudden people said, 'There's another movie,' and I said, 'Really?' And then I was so deep into it I couldn't really get out of it. And I also didn't want to."

But what is a coincidence, according to Emmerich, is the fact that movies with the president as a hero weren't as popular while Bush was in the White House as they are now or they were under Clinton.

"It's not jingoistic when somebody like (Clinton or Obama) is in the White House to do a White House movie," he says. "And also these are smart people and you can make them smart characters, which naturally was a little bit difficult under Bush."

Armie Hammer got knifed during sex?

Well, here's a story you don't hear every day from a celebrity interview: Armie Hammer, the hunky actor from The Social Network (twice over) and the new Lone Ranger movie, once had a knife pulled on him during sex.

"One chick tried to stab me when we were having sex. I should so not be telling this story. She was like, 'True love leaves scars. You don't have any.' And then she tried to stab me with a butcher knife. Of course I promptly broke up with her — seven months later," he tells Elle magazine in a new interview.

Funny. I had no idea Armie Hammer and Amanda Bynes were ever dating, did you?

Justin Bieber

The Biebs now knows how his monkey felt, as Selena leaves him behind

Maybe Justin Bieber's on-again, off-again relationship with Selena Gomez won't be going on again anymore, as Gomez has reportedly moved on with British singer-songwriter Ed Sheeran," according to Us Weekly.

"They are hooking up," a source tells the magazine. "She got sick of having to take care of Justin like he was her child. This is a nice escape from the drama."

Holmes focused on Suri, not dating

A year after her split from Tom Cruise, Katie Holmes is struggling to adjust to life as a single mom — and has put her love life on hold, according to People magazine.

"She had the courage to leave and take control of her life. Things have been tough for her, but she's happy," a source tells the magazine.

"She's lying low on the romantic side of things. She doesn't need that right now. Her focus is on (her daughter) Suri. I don't think she's ready."

Johnny Depp

Depp wraps up his study of booze

Johnny Depp says he made the choice to stop drinking alcohol a year and a half ago, but he insists he is not an alcoholic.

"No, I don't have the physical need for the drug alcohol. It's more my medication, my self-medication over the years just to calm the circus," he says. "I just decided that I pretty much got everything I could get out of it."

I investigated wine and spirits thoroughly, and they certainly investigated me as well, and we found out that we got along beautifully, but maybe too well."

We all scream — for Ice Cream Sandwiches

A summer buffet.

Tinker with the perfection that is this season's finest treat by sandwiching it between some delicious additions

When it comes to enjoying an ice cream sandwich buffet, encourage your guests to get a little crazy. Why sandwich just one variety of ice cream when you could combine two or more?

And assure them that creating totally over-the-top treats is not just appropriate, but expected. Try sandwiching chocolate ice cream between two whoopie pies with layers of peanut sauce and marshmallow spread, for example.

Shortcake Sandwich

Spread 2 pieces of thinly sliced and toasted pound cake with strawberry jam, then fill with vanilla or strawberry ice cream.

Black and Red

Sandwich raspberry sorbet between chocolate wafer cookies.

Creamside

Sandwich orange sherbet or gelato between vanilla sugar cookies. Add a smear of chocolate fudge sauce, if desired.

S'More

Spread marshmallow spread on

Ingredients

For the "bread"

- Pound cake, sliced and toasted
- Chocolate wafer cookies

When you think of French wines, what place first comes to mind? I asked a cross section of wine lovers (OK, my drinking buddies) and they all came up with the same thing: Bordeaux.

Bordeaux is the original home of grape kings like Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot, along with some of the most gorgeous real estate in the wine world. This region is where the château hits the fan.

I recently had a chance to tour Château Mouton Rothschild, one of the classiest wine estates in France and the home of its famous red with the prestigious First Growth status.

That kind of wine comes with a price. A recent vintage of Mouton will set you back more than $1,000. But there's more to the winery than their superstar bottle. It also makes Mouton Cadet, a pair of wines (red and white) that have been shipped to Canada for decades. Though the region is red wine territory, its whites are true undiscovered gems. The 2011 Mouton Cadet Blanc ($12.99 to $15.99) is fresh and bright with a light citrus expression that works wonders with a seafood menu. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Cup competitors shift goals back to defence

NHL playoffs.

Exchanging chances not on to-do list for Bruins or Blackhawks heading into Game 5

Jonathan Toews didn't think the Chicago Blackhawks would need six goals to win Game 4 of the Stanley Cup final. By the time Patrick Sharp scored with 8:41 left in the third period to make it 5-4, he figured it would be enough.

It wasn't, but the Blackhawks managed to tie the series when Brent Seabrook's overtime goal gave them a 6-5 win over Boston. Still, they know they must adjust on the defensive end going back to Chicago for Game 5 Saturday night.

"There's a give-and-take as far as the quality and quantity we give up. We always measure how we play is what we give up," coach Joel Quenneville said. "I just don't think we want to just exchange scoring chances ... That's not part of our game, and it's not part of the way we want to play."

That open style certainly suits the Blackhawks better than the Bruins, even as Claude Julien took exception to the notion that his team played "rough-and-tumble" hockey and not much else. Boston doesn't want to get into an end-to-end game either, considering the ways Chicago can turn up the speed and offence.

"I don't think any coach likes the back-and-forth, exchanging chances," Julien said. "Although it's exciting for the fans, you're looking for some zone time."

Eleven goals made for quite the departure from Games 2 and 3, when the teams combined for just five. It was just another twist in a series that Blackhawks forward Patrick Kane called "pretty bizarre."

Not so good for the coaches, goaltenders and defences involved. Game 4 was the first real rough night of the playoffs for Bruins goalie Tuukka Rask, even though most of the goals weren't on him, and Quenneville had to reaffirm his stance Thursday that Corey Crawford would remain in net for the Blackhawks moving forward.

Crawford's teammates assumed some of the pressure for the offensive explosion.

"I think as forwards we

Briere a Philly lifer despite buyout

Danny Briere said goodbye to the Philadelphia Flyers, though he's not leaving the area.

The Flyers are buying out the final two years of Briere's contract, a move that will shave $6.5 million off their salary cap. Briere will become an unrestricted free agent as part of Philadelphia's off-season shake-up of its high-priced roster that missed the playoffs last season.

"This is my home," Briere said of South Jersey. "Wherever I'm going to end up, the kids are staying here and I'm coming back here. This is what we consider home now."

Big expectations for big cities

They promise to be the biggest world junior hockey championships ever.

Hockey Canada announced Thursday that the 2015 and 2017 championships will be co-hosted by Canada's two largest cities — Toronto and Montreal.

"We're taking this to a whole new level," Hockey Canada president Bob Nicholson said.

News conferences were held a few hours apart in both cities for the tournaments that organizers expect to set records for attendance and revenue.

Both cities will host a preliminary round group at each event, with Toronto hosting the medal round in 2015 and Montreal hosting the medal round in 2017.

Lawsuit claims Pats TE shot man in face

New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez JIM ROGASH/GETTY IMAGES

New England Patriots tight end Aaron Hernandez, already connected to a homicide victim in Massachusetts, is being sued in South Florida by a man claiming Hernandez shot him in the face after they argued at a strip club.

The lawsuit filed late Wednesday by 30-year-old Alexander Bradley comes as police in New England investigate the death of 27-year-old semi-pro player Odin Lloyd. Lloyd's body was found in an industrial park near Hernandez's home in North Attleborough, Mass. Lloyd's family has said he had some connection to Hernandez, but would not elaborate.

In his federal lawsuit seeking at least $100,000 in damages, Bradley claims he and Hernandez were with a group in February at Tootsie's club in Miami when the two got into an argument. Later, as they were driving to Palm Beach County, Bradley claims Hernandez shot him with a handgun, causing him to lose his right eye.

Patriots keep quiet

In Massachusetts, family and police were mum on the nature of Aaron Hernandez's relationship to Odin Lloyd, who played for the Boston Bandits semi-pro team.

- Patriots spokesman Stacey James said the team did not anticipate commenting publicly during the police investigation.

Blue Jays still looking up in AL East

MLB. They've rattled off 8-straight wins, now the immediate road ahead gives Toronto real chance to prove it's a playoff contender

Winners of eight straight and 12 of their last 15, the Toronto Blue Jays have done well these past two weeks, undoing some of the damage wrought by their sluggish start to the season.

But it's the next 10 days that could define their year.

Starting Friday, the Jays kick off a 10-game stretch against AL East rivals. After taking on the Baltimore Orioles at home this weekend, the Jays travel through Tampa and Boston on a crucial seven-game road trip.

Locked-in left-hander

"Everything's clicking right now for us."

"It's an important part of the schedule, no question," said manager John Gibbons.

Not until the final two weeks of the season — when they play 15 consecutive games against divisional rivals — do the Jays embark on such a sustained stretch within the AL East.

But those games will be moot if the Jays don't start making up ground within their division now.

"Yeah it's important, but every game's important right now," said closer Casey Janssen. "I don't think there's a certain stretch right now that's make or break. Yeah, we've got to win in our division — it's the only way we're going to gain games on these teams — but it's still early to say these next 10 games are going to decide our season."

As cliché as it sounds, the Jays are still trying to focus on a game at a time, Janssen said.

"We can't look too far ahead, because the task is tough. But if you break it down and it's just one night it doesn't seem as extreme. It's just, 'Hey, let's win tonight and let's do it again tomorrow.'"
